- 1. A popular place to make a movie
- 2. A royal way to get there

- 4. Art exhibitions held in the castle
- 5. It has to be small
- 6. A design inspired by the birds
- 7. From high to low
- 8. It lived through the natural disaster
- A. Swallows are elegant and very cute birds. Probably because of this, they are popular and always positive characters in different stories and fairy tales. These birds like nesting under the roofs of houses. It is considered good luck to have a swallow's nest in your house. There is, however, one swallow's nest which people can visit. It is situated in Crimea, not far from Yalta. It is an old castle, which is attached to the Aurora rock, just like a swallow's nest.
- B. The first construction which was built on the top of Aurora cliff was a small house. It was in 1877. According to legend, a Russian general chose this place because of its peace and privacy. Eighteen years later, the new owner, Baron von Steingel, asked architect L. Sherwood to build a romantic castle on the cliff. In 1910, the Swallow's Nest was created. It looked so beautiful and elegant that any princess would be happy to live in the castle.
- C. The Swallow's Nest is built on the very edge of the cliff. Some of the balconies and patios stretch beyond the ground and hang directly over the water. On first sight, it looks like the nice castle could easily slide right into the Black Sea. Due to its position, the Swallow's Nest is quite compact in size. It is just 20 metres long and 10 metres wide, it contains only a few rooms on two floors. There is also an observation deck, from where visitors can enjoy magnificent views of the sea and the shoreline.
- D. Despite its location, the castle is solid and reliable. In fact, it survived a severe earthquake in 1927 without being seriously damaged. The cliff itself was not so lucky it cracked under the stress of the quake. So the Swallow's Nest was closed for 40 years due to the vertical crack in the rock beneath it. In 1970, after great engineering works, the castle was opened as restaurant. Following another major renovation in 2011, the Swallow's Nest became a public museum.
- E. The Swallow's Nest has become the symbol of the Crimea's southern coastline. It was featured in several films. It was used as the setting for the Russian screen version of Agatha Christie's "And Then There Were None" (or "Ten Niggers") in 1987. The castle was also featured in the Russian-Polish children's film Mister Blot's Academy. Once, the Swallow's Nest also welcomed Jackie Chan, who shot some scenes there.
- F. The Tsar's Path (or the Sunny Path) was created in 1861 for the Russian Tsar Alexander III upon his doctor's recommendation. Nowadays it runs for 6.7 kilometres 150 metres above the sea. Tourists enjoy it a lot. The legendary walking path starts out at the Livadia Palace and finishes at the Swallow's Nest. It is decorated with sculptures, rare exotic trees and bushes, and unique benches to rest on.

G. Those who come to the Swallow's Nest by boat may notice a small cave with the same name. The waters inside are very deep and clear. For this reason, the cave is a great attraction to divers. On the ceiling of the cave one can see a large dark spot. The locals say that this mark was left by the fire of ancient people. However, there is not any proof for this claim yet.

Federal Express

What does it take to start a business? A brilliant idea? A great team? Money? Yes. All of those things. But the most important thing is a belief in the significance of the future business. It is really amazing that most large companies, Federal Express for example, have stories of their humble beginnings.

Fred Smith was born in Mississippi, in the United States, in 1944. Fred was named after his father, a successful businessman. In 1948, when Fred was only four years old, his father died. Fortunately, Smith senior had made enough money to provide for his family. However, it would be a long time before the children would see any of their father's money. Concerned that his children could waste their money, their lives and their talents, Smith senior had his money placed into a trust fund to be given to the children upon their 21st birthdays.

In 1962, Fred Smith entered Yale University, one of the oldest and most famous universities in the USA.

In 1965, as part of his coursework, he wrote an economics paper exploring the process of transportation of goods in the United States. He found that the delivery service used lorries or passenger airplanes to transport large packages across the United States, which was not very convenient. Smith thought of a more efficient transportation idea. He proposed to deliver small parcels, such as replacement parts and medical supplies, by special planes. Smith tried to prove that it could be a good business. However, he did not go into details about how to actually run such a company. The professor was not impressed and gave Smith a grade of C for his work. But Smith did not give up on the idea and in 1971, after graduating from the university, launched the company Federal Express.

Within the first three years of founding the company, Federal Express was very close to bankruptcy. It was losing over $1 million a month because of rising fuel costs. Eventually the company had just $5000 to its name. Smith tried to raise more money but he failed.

Most ordinary people would have stopped at this point and shut down the company. Not Fred Smith. The founder of the young company performed an extraordinary and courageous deed. Smith flew to Las Vegas and played Blackjack that weekend with the remaining company funds. Yes, the whole $5000. He was unbelievably lucky that day! On Monday, the management of the company had a pleasant surprise. Federal Express had $32,000 on its bank account, which was just enough to cover the fuel for their planes and to continue operating.

Soon after, the company was able to strengthen its position and continue to develop. At the root of the company's success was Smith's philosophy: people, service, profit (P-S-P). From the company's earliest beginnings, even when times were tough, Smith tried to provide his workers with a good salary, special bonuses and medical coverage.

In 2000, the company changed its name to the FedEx Corporation. Today FedEx is a global giant with operations in more than 220 countries and territories using over six hundred aircraft and 46,000 vehicles. It provides fast and reliable deliveries to clients worldwide.
